English

Alma continued

Read the text below first.

1. Read it again and find the short snappy sentences.
2. Read it once more and look at where the author has added description of micro expressions.

Task

Today I would like you to write something similar but for your new character.

Targets for Success

- Include at least one complex sentence using a relative clause.
- Include some short and snappy simple sentences to add tension.
- Add details to describe your character’s micro expressions as he/she enters into the shop.

She pressed her nose against the window. Her warm breath steamed it up. A doll stared back. Alma's jaw dropped slightly open and her eyes widened. She looked down at her outfit, noticing that the doll was dressed in an identical miniature version of her own clothing; the hat, the gilet, the mittens- everything was the same. It was her! She looked back up. A small, excited smile played momentarily on her lips, but the doll was gone. It had completely disappeared. Peering through several of the panes of glass, she craned her neck to see whether the doll had fallen off its stand, but it was nowhere to be seen. She raced to the door and tugged it. Nothing. It was stuck. Disappointment weighed heavily upon her shoulders, and she threw a snowball at the wood 'THUD' and then began to wander away until she heard the door creak slowly open behind her...

Topic: French

We're going to take a look at countries and continents – but in French!

Use atlases, dictionaries, reference books and the internet to find:

1. The French name for the country.
2. The continent the country is in.
3. The flag of the country.

Write a sentence in French to say which continent the country is in. One is done for you.

Country (English)	Country (French)	Continent (French)	Flag
England	L'Angleterre	en Europe
1. L'Angleterre est en Europe.
Mexico	_____	_____
2. _____
Malaysia	_____	_____
3. _____
New Guinea	_____	_____
